INFORMATION, AUTHORIZATION, & CONSENT TO BEING A COLLATERAL PARTICIPANT

Thank you very much for taking the time to read this authorization form carefully. We have given you this form because you have elected to become part of your friend's, family member's, spouse's, or partner's treatment. Although providing this document is part of an ethical obligation to our profession, more importantly, it is part of our commitment to you to keep you fully informed of every part of your experience here at Atlanta Center for Wellness, LLC. Specifically, this document is to inform you about your rights, responsibilities, and risks regarding collateral participation. A "collateral participant," means that you are here to assist another person (the designated client), but you are not the primary focus of treatment. Please know that your relationship with the client's provider is a collaborative one, and they welcome any questions, comments, or suggestions regarding your collateral participation.

Description of Collateral Participation

The role of a collateral participant can vary greatly. For example, a parent or guardian may continuously be involved in the treatment of a minor. Whereas, a partner or friend may only come in once or twice to help the designated client. The client's provider will discuss what role you shall take in the client's treatment during your first session. As mentioned above, the client's provider is committed to providing treatment to the designated client, and your participation is adjunct to this treatment. Therefore, the provider's legal and ethical responsibility resides strictly with the designated client. This means the following: (1) What the client tells their provider is confidential, but what you tell their provider is not. This isn't to say that the provider plans to divulge any information that you tell them to the public. However, they will not keep secrets from the client, and your information isn't protected by the same laws that the information given to them by the client is. (2) Although your participation as a collateral may help you psychologically; it also may not. The provider's primary concern is for the client, and treatment will focus on the client's needs. However, the provider will be glad to give you other resources for your own treatment if necessary. (3) The provider will keep a clinical record for the designated client only. Any notes they take regarding your participation will go into the client's chart. The client has the right to access their chart. Whereas, you do not have the right to access this chart without the client's written permission. Parents have a legal right to a minor's chart, but not an ethical right. (4) The provider will give the client a diagnosis for treatment purposes and, if applicable, for insurance filing. However, the provider will not give a collateral participant any kind of diagnosis.

Parents as Collateral Participants

Due to the sensitive nature of mental health treatment and the fragile stage of development that your child is currently experiencing, forming a therapeutic bond with their provider is very critical at this point. It is important that they feel safe and comfortable discussing personal and private topics with their provider. In effort to respect the privacy and sensitive needs of your child, the provider will not be discussing the content of meetings with you in detail. It is our hope that through the therapeutic process new skills and insights will be gained by your child so they can discuss these sensitive topics with you in their own time. If your child is too young to do this, the provider will definitely have family meetings to assist in this process. However, if at any time the provider makes the assessment that your child is in danger or might be dangerous to others, if abuse/neglect is suspected or reported, or if there are any other concerns related to the health and welfare of your child, you will be notified immediately so that the necessary actions and precautions can be taken.

Background Information and Theoretical Views

Information regarding the designated provider's educational background and experience may be found on our website under their name. Please feel free to view that information at www.atlantacenterforwellness.com.

It is our belief that as people become more stable in their eating disorder recovery, they will use better judgment and be able to function at their best. Some clients need only several months to achieve their recovery goals, whereas others may require many months or even years of treatment. It is our policy to only see clients who we believe have the capacity to resolve their problems with their providers' assistance. We recognize this is not always a straight path of improvement. Recovery often imitates a spiral. Patients may find themselves looping back around to places that feel familiar, but hopefully they are moving up in levels of recovery incrementally. If no forward movement is detected after a period of time that seems reasonable, we will assist with referrals to a higher level of care if that is indicated or to other resources that will be of assistance to them. It is the intention of the client's provider to empower the designated client in their growth process to the degree that they are capable of facing life's challenges in the future without the provider. We don't believe in creating dependency or prolonging treatment if the therapeutic intervention does not seem to be helping.

Confidentiality & Records

As mentioned above, your communications with the client's provider will become part of a clinical record of treatment for the designated client, and it is referred to as the client's Protected Health Information (PHI), protected by both federal and state law. The PHI of the client will be kept in a file stored in a locked cabinet in our locked office or will be stored within our electronic health record (EHR). Additionally, the PHI of the client is confidential, with the following exceptions: (1) the client directs their provider to tell someone else and signs a "Release of Information" form; (2) The client's provider determines that the client or you are a danger to yourself or to others; (3) the client or you report information about the abuse of a child, an elderly person, or a disabled individual who may require protection; (4) the sessions are being billed to an insurance company, and the client's insurance company requires the client's provider to submit information about treatment for claims processing or utilization review; or (5) The client's provider is ordered by a judge to disclose information. Regarding an order by a judge, the provider's license does provide the provider with the ability to uphold what is legally termed "privileged communication." Privileged communication is the client's right to have a confidential relationship with a health care provider. This state has a very good track record in respecting this legal right. If for some unusual reason a judge were to order the disclosure of the client's private information, this order can be appealed. We cannot guarantee that the appeal will be sustained, but we will do everything in our power to keep what the client says confidential. However, you should be aware that if a judge orders the disclosure of your information, the client's provider does not have the legal authority to maintain your confidentiality. They only maintain that authority with the designated client. Additionally, it is expected that you will maintain the confidentiality of the client in your role as a collateral participant.

If at any point, the provider determines that family or couples therapy is more appropriate than collateral participation, then you will be afforded all the rights to confidentiality that currently reside with the designated client. Please feel free to discuss this with the client's therapist if you have concerns.

Structure and Cost of Sessions

Sessions are typically 20-50 minutes in duration. Occasionally, if the client's provider feels more time is needed, sessions may be 75 or 90 minutes in duration, which the client's provider will discuss with you prior to the appointment. Initial sessions are often longer sessions. Unless you elect to do so, or you are financially responsible for the client (such as a parent of a minor), you are not responsible for paying any of our professional fees.

Cancellation Policy

Please initial that you have read this page _____

In the event that you are unable to keep an appointment, you must notify the client's provider/admin at least 24 hours in advance. If such advance notice is not received, the client or you will be financially responsible for the session you missed. Please note that insurance companies do not reimburse for missed sessions.

In Case of an Emergency

Our practice is considered to be an outpatient facility, and we are set up to accommodate individuals who are reasonably stable, safe and resourceful. We do not carry beepers nor are we available at all times. If at any time this does not feel like sufficient support for the person you are here to support, please feel free to inform the client's therapist, and you can discuss additional resources for the designated client or transfer the case to a clinic with 24-hour availability. However, if you are feeling that you are not getting enough support, this is a good indication that you might need to seek individual therapy for your own needs, which is discussed in the next section. Generally, we will return non-emergency phone calls within 24-48 business hours. DR. HOPKINS IS NOT AVAILABLE FOR EMERGENCIES OUTSIDE HIS PRACTICE HOURS! If you or the designated client has a mental health emergency, we encourage you not to wait for a call back, but to do one or more of the following:

- Call Behavioral Health Link/GCAL: 800-715-4225
- Call Ridgeview Institute at 770.434.4567
- Call Peachford Hospital at 770.454.5589
- Call 911.
- Go to your nearest emergency room for medical crisis.

Professional Relationship

Medical Services must be limited to only a professional relationship. If you and/or the client were to interact with the provider in any other ways, you would then have a "dual relationship." This could prove to be harmful to you or the client in the long run, and is unethical in the health profession. Dual relationships can set up conflicts between the therapist's interests and the collateral's or client's interests, and then the collateral's or client's interests might not be put first. In order to offer all of our clients and their collateral participant's the best care, the provider's judgment needs to be purely focused on client needs. This is why your relationship with the provider must remain professional in nature.

You should also know that providers are required to keep the identity of their clients and collaterals confidential. As much as the client's provider would like to, for your confidentiality, the provider will not address you in public unless you speak to the provider first. Lastly, when the therapeutic relationship is completed, the provider will not be able to be a friend to you like your other friends. In sum, it is the provider's duty to always maintain a professional role. Please note that these guidelines are not meant to be discourteous in any way, they are strictly for the client's and your long-term protection.

Statement Regarding Ethics, Client Welfare & Safety

We assure you that our services will be rendered in a professional manner consistent with the ethical standards of the American Medical Association. If at any time you feel that the client's provider is not performing in an ethical or professional manner, we ask that you please let the provider know immediately. If you are unable to resolve your concern, please contact Ephrat Lipton, Managing Partner of Atlanta Center for Wellness at ephratlipton@gmail.com.

Due to the very nature of psychotherapy, as much as we would like to guarantee specific results regarding your participation or the treatment goals of the designated client, we are unable to do so. However, with your participation, the client's provider will work to achieve the best possible results for the client as well as your relationship with them.

Please initial that you have read this page _____

Additionally, as a support person for the client, it is important for you to know that at times people find that they feel somewhat worse when they first start therapy before they begin to feel better. This may occur as the client begins discussing certain sensitive areas of his/her life while in a session. However, once the client's provider is able to target the specific treatment needs for the client and the particular modalities that work the best, help is generally on the way.

Technology Statement

In our ever-changing technological society, there are several ways we could potentially communicate and/or follow each other electronically. It is of utmost importance to us that we maintain your confidentiality, respect your boundaries, and ascertain that your relationship with Atlanta Center for Wellness, LLC and all our associates remains professional. Therefore, we've developed the following policies:

Cell phones: It is important for you to know that cell phones may not be completely secure and confidential. However, we realize that most people have and utilize a cell phone. The client's provider may also use a cell phone to contact you. If this is a problem, please feel free to discuss this with the client's provider.

Text Messaging and Email: Both text messaging and emailing are not secure means of communication and may compromise your confidentiality. However, we realize that many people prefer to text and/or email because it is a quick way to convey information. If you choose to utilize texting or email, please discuss this with the client's provider. However, please know that it is our policy to utilize these means of communication strictly for brief topics such as appointment confirmations. Please do not bring up any confidential content via text or email to prevent compromising your confidentiality. You also need to know that the client's provider is required to keep a copy of all emails and texts as part of the client's clinical record.

Facebook, LinkedIn, Instagram, Pinterest, Etc: It is the client's provider's policy not to accept requests from any current or former client on personal social networking sites such as Facebook, LinkedIn, Instagram, Pinterest, etc. because it may compromise your confidentiality. However, Atlanta Center for Wellness, LLC has a business Facebook page, a Twitter account and is on LinkedIn, etc. You are welcome to follow us on any of these pages. but please do so only if you are comfortable with the general public being aware of the fact that your name is attached to Atlanta Center for Wellness, LLC. If you would like to follow us on any of these media, you might want to consider using an alias to keep your connection with us confidential, but that is entirely your decision.

Google, etc.: It is our policy not to search for our clients or collateral participants on Google or any other search engine. We respect your privacy and make it a policy to allow you to share information about yourself with the client's therapist as you feel appropriate. If there is content on the Internet that you would like to share with the client's provider, please print this material out and bring it to your session.

In summary, technology is constantly changing, and there are implications to all of the above that we may not realize at this time. Please feel free to ask questions, and know that we are open to any feelings or thoughts you have about these and other modalities of communication.
